Go to the best free logo design software Najlep best paid logo designer software The free logo can be crucial to your company's success, so just focusing on free tools can be a false economy. Honestly, the best logo designer for your needs will probably require some cash. So in the first part of this post, we round up the best logo designer software around this paid one; for different platforms, as well as for professionals, novice designers and non-designers respectively. Adobe Illustrator is the best logo designer for professional use (Image Credit: Adobe) First launched in 1985, Adobe Illustrator has spent several decades as a market-leading vector editor. As the name suggests, not only to create a logo, but is used to create illustrations, posters, web layouts, icons and more. But this is the tool most likely used by professionals to design logos. This is partly because it is a very powerful and feature-rich piece of design software. It works seamlessly and efficiently with the entire Creative Cloud ecosystem, which means it's interoperable with other Adobe applications, and you can access assets such as Adobe fonts and Adobe Stock fonts in the interface. Partly because it has existed for so long, it is an undisputed industry standard. If you're brand new to software design, it's a pretty steep learning curve. Also note that Illustrator is not available as a one-time download, but only as part of a monthly subscription, which can be quite expensive (although our Adobe Creative Cloud discount article can help keep the price on the downside). To speed up logo design with Adobe Illustrator, check out this Adobe tutorial and our own tutorial, Design the Killer logo in Illustrator. Create logo designs easily using the canva logo maker interface (Image credit: Canva) If you are a novice designer with little or no experience in creative software, something like Adobe Illustrator might be a little bit In contrast, you'll find that Canva Logo Maker makes it easy to create a nice-looking logo using a drag-and-drop interface that works directly in your browser. You can use one of canvy's professionally designed logo templates to get started, then add your brand and start customizing items until you create a design you're happy with. When you're done, you can download and share your finished logo as a PNG file. If you use your own images and graphics, you won't pay a dime from start to finish, while the graphics in your library start at $1 a pop. In general, our favorite thing about Canva Logo Maker is how easy it is to use it, with helpful pop-up instructions that guide you from start to finish. Some examples of logos created by Tailor Brands AI-powered logo design software (Image credit: Tailor Brands) In our opinion Tailor Brands Logo Maker is the best logo designer software for non-designers: people without creative bones in their bodies. Because, simply put, it does all the design for you. It starts with a request to type in your logo, then presents a number of typographic options and asks which you like better (you can also choose I don't like both). It's a bit like taking a pop quiz on Facebook and it only takes a minute or two to choose from. When you're done, the tool uses clever AI to conjure up a selection of potential logo designs based on your choices, which can be icon-based, initial or name-based. If you like one of them because they are, then you are free to go ahead and download as an SVG or EPS file (at this point you pay). If you sort like one of them, you can start customizing text, typeface, colors, etc., using simple tools in your browser until you're satisfied. At this point, to access files with the hi-res logo, you will have to pay from £2.99 per month, billed annually. It may sound like a lot of money, but there are also many others thrown in, including a logo transfer tool, a logo in various social media sizes, as well as a graphic design tool, stock photos and icons, and an AI-based website builder. In short, if you are not a designer looking for a package of marketing and internet services, along with a custom logo design, it is worth considering. Designhill uses artificial intelligence to make logo creation easy for non-designers (image credit: Designhill) Quick and easy AI deals with deformation Expensive Designhill Logo Maker is powered by AI and works in a very similar way to Tailor Brands tool (above). You enter your data, choose the range of colors and patterns that you like to look like, and then the software creates a range of custom designs to choose from and/or customize. Main is at prices: while Tailor Brands Logo Maker charges a subscription, Designhill wants a one-time fee of £50 to download and hold the logo. It may seem like a lot of money, but the logo generation itself is quick, easy and free, so if you're not a designer definitely worth a try. After all, if you automatically generate an absolutely love logo, then it's not really a lot of money at all. ICONA Logo Maker is a surprisingly powerful logo designer software for iOS (Image Credit: ICONA)A wide range of sophisticated iOS customization assets onlyYou can't spell!ICONA Logo Maker is a paid app ($2.98) for iPhone and iPad that most educated people will likely swipe past on the App Store, thanks incorrectly to the Professional Logo Studio slogan. Typos aside, however, this logo designer software is surprisingly sophisticated. With over a million customizable designs, over 350K+ image backgrounds and custom shades ranging from solid colors to gradients, there's a lot of flexibility here, making you more likely to create something that doesn't look like everyone else's logo. You can further customize your design with a range of advanced controls, including smart layer overlay, fill and stroke coloring, solid and gradient coloring, kerning and leading, and mesh snapping. Of course, non-designers won't know what most of this means, and thus will probably be better off with one of the simpler tools on this list. But if you're a novice designer who doesn't want to spend a lot of time in a tool like Illustrator (and/or spend significant money), this app can be all the way to your street. Logo Design Studio Pro Online allows you to create unlimited logos, quickly and easily (Image Credit: Logo Design Studio Pro Online) Simple to use Create unlimited logoExpensive More basic than IllustratorDespite about Pro in the title, Logo Design Studio Pro is not really for professionals. Instead, it's closer to something like Canva Logo Maker, providing a simple interface that makes it easier for novice designers to create a basic logo. With 3-5 tools in this list, the creation process is free and you pay when you download the logo. The Design Studio Pro logo, conversely, loads to use the software itself, but allows you to design as many logos as you want. As we went to the press, you had the choice of paying $29.99 for one month (then $7.99 for each additional month), or $19.99 per month if you sign up for a year. There are many resources included to help you complete your logo, including thousands of templates and graphics, and hundreds of licensed fonts on the market. If you're just looking to create one logo, this app is probably an exaggeration, but if you want to create a lot, it might be worth a subscription. The best free logo designer softwareWhile you can pay to invest in designer logo software, sometimes you just need a quick and simple logo design as a placeholder before you sort out a more sophisticated design further down the line. However, if Google Logo designer software, then watch out! Many results will bring you to logo tools that seem to be free, but actually at once you want to download the logo. However, these three tools allow you to create and download the logo (albeit with some limitations). Read on to discover the best free logo designer software available today... Squarespace Logo Creator is super fast and hassle-free (Credit image: Squarespace) Very easyVery fastAlmost not adaptOnly free for customers SquarespaceSquarespace is another paid platform for building a website, and they were almost the first to offer their customers free software to designer logos. You can select a symbol from the noun design, and that's all in terms of customization. Then it's time to download your logo. Not a huge amount of sophistication on offer then. But if you just want a quick logo and don't really care about the design as long as it looks good, then this is the fastest and easiest way to do it. Please note, however, that you must be a Squarespace customer to get the high-end version of the logo for free.
